Stephanie Wagner is a biologist and science educator. She holds a Master's Degree from UCLA in Zoology, with an emphasis on cell physiology. She moved to Oregon from California in 1976 and moved to Lake Oswego in 1981.

Stephanie has worked as Executive Director for Friends of Tryon Creek State Park and Program Director for the Center for Science Education at Portland State University. She has been a community volunteer in Lake Oswego, serving on the Parks and Recreation and Natural Resources Advisory Boards for many years.

Stephanie is the current Chair of the Oswego Lake Watershed Council and Secretary of the Lake Oswego Sustainability Network. Her interests focus on developing community understanding of the impacts of climate change and actions we can take to mitigate its effects. She is currently working with the Lake Oswego School District on embedding outdoor learning about gardens and watershed function into the STEAM curriculum.
